Associate Professor Julie Green

Associate Professor Julie Green is the executive director of the Raising Children Network and a member of the network's board. Julie leads a team in the translation of scientific research and best practice into online resources to support parents during pregnancy and raising children and teenagers. She leads the network's collaborations with the Australian and state governments, business and community organisations, and regularly contributes to the media on the issues of raising children in Australia.

Julie is also Principal Fellow at the University of Melbourne and Principal Research Fellow at the Murdoch Children's Research Institute.